“ When I first crossed paths with Annabeth and Bob they were known to me as the happy lady and the gentleman. Although I later came to know them by their names they were always defined by my first experience of them. Their friendship, good humour and courage where a blessing to me over the years that I have known them. With the loss of Annabeth the world is somehow a lesser place. But seeing the seeds of Annabeth's spirit in her children and grandchildren the other evening let me know that her beautiful spirit lives on in them.
