“ Bob and I shared grandparents but, time and location prevented us from sharing our lives. However, when our paths crossed, you’d think we were best friends. I’d get a call from him, out of the blue, or I’d leave a message or be surprised to hear Bob’s rich voice answer. Our conversations were usually months or years apart, but time never mattered.
Now, I won’t half expect to hear from him again, as he’s singing with the angels.
