“RIP, Dave Hawxhurst! Your Queens friends miss you. You were a close and reliable friend, wickedly funny, always so loyal and supportive. You were also very good at taw kwon do and ferociously strong! Nobody messed with Big Dave. A tough guy on the outside but really the sweetest and kindest guy. I was lucky to know you.

“I knew Dave from back in the late 1980s to late 1990s in Queens, especially through mutual friends and a rock band we had at the time.

When we played gigs in and around NYC, often in run-down areas and clubs, Dave relished — and excelled at — being The Big Guy who with gruff good humor hauled amps, maintained order, and made sure no one ran off with guitars and drums. There was no better man for the job. Strong, reliable, vigilant.

Many is the post-gig night when with ears ringing and cars groaning with gear, we drove back home with dawn breaking over Queens.

Dave was also a blunt and useful critic, knowing what he liked and why, and growling at what he judged had come up short. Even if he didn't say it, you knew what he was thinking.

May he rest in peace, Big Dave, and my sincere condolences to Lisa and all his family.

“ Dave and I worked together at Verizon. We enjoyed many chats and quite a few laughs after work, leaving to go home long after our shift ended. He was a good friend, always willing to lend a hand and news of his passing immensely saddens me. Sending heartfelt condolences to Lisa and his family.
Rest easy, Dave.
